

TAHURE HILL IS LOST BY FRENCH

Germans Recapture Position, But Fail to Take City. Many Assaults Stopped.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—As a net result of two days of the most violent fighting yet seen on the Champagne front, the Germans have recaptured Tahure hill from which the French batteries menaced the Challerange-Bazancourt railway, the main supply line for all the German troops in the Soissons salient. The Germans attacked on a five-mile front with strong reinforcements of veterans from the Russian front fighting in the first line.

Following this success the Germans Sunday made four successive assaults on the French defenses in an effort to enlarge their gains and take the village of Tahure, a mile south of the hill. Despite minute artillery preparations and heavily massed attacks, the Germans were thrown back in each of these assaults. According to papers they suffered heavy losses. French reports detail the capture of 256 unwounded prisoners. But Berlin states that in the capture of Tahure 1,200 French remained in German hands.

Attack Opens Saturday. The German attack opened early Saturday morning with a general bombardment of the entire salient established by the French when they captured Tahure hill progressed with violence, throughout the day, increasing intensely as night drew near. Every yard of the French line from the hill to the eastern extremity of the works known as "La Courtine," including the village of Tahure and the heights to the north, northeast and south of it, was hammered with a pulverizing fire.

As the scream of shells and the bursting of shrapnel reached its highest pitch, the German infantry drove forward against the whole line. Heavily massed forces advancing in wave upon wave, rushed forward behind gas clouds and thick billows of heavy smoke. They were met by a devastating fire from the French batteries and musketry. Bodies of dead and wounded formed before the French trenches.

Germans Sweep Over. Everywhere the French line held except at Tahure hill, where the Germans concentrated their heaviest infantry forces. Here the French machine guns and rifles poured a steady stream of bullets into the onrushing German ranks and as they drew nearer, bombs and grenades were used, and finally the bayonet, only to no purpose. The Germans swept over tier upon tier of trenches until finally they reached the summit with its coveted command of the valley to the north.

Sunday, elated by their recapture of Tahure hill and undismayed by their losses on the remainder of the five-mile front, the Germans renewed with ever increasing violence their artillery bombardment, throwing vast quantities of poisonous gas shells of huge calibre into the French trenches. After a cannonade lasting from before dawn until about 6 o'clock they made their first assault. This was directed against the eastern extremity of La Courtine, a highly organized work. Here as in the succeeding attacks, the French artillery employed their "curtains of fire," streams of exploding shells dropped behind advancing columns, to prevent machine guns moving them down. The German attack broke down and the attackers were thrown in disorder to seek refuge in their trenches.

Attack on Village Fails. Tahure, the village itself, was the

A Safe Food That is Clean for Infants

Mothers who are having trouble in securing absolutely pure, germ-free dairy milk should try Etna Milk. The wonderful process by which Etna Brand Evaporated Milk is made from pure, fresh cow's milk, makes reaching the housewife absolutely clean and pure. It does not have the "cooked" taste of condensed milk, but tastes like fresh rich cream. For cooking it is more economical and convenient to use than either dairy milk or cream. Many housewives are using it for coffee, for breakfast foods and in place of cream.

When you consider that Etna Evaporated Milk in the tin can for 10 cents is the equivalent of the same amount of fresh cream, the economy in buying Etna Milk is surprising. Many of the best grocers of South Bend have already been supplied. You can recognize Etna Brand Evaporated Milk by the picture of the beautiful Jersey cow on the Etna can—Jacobson, Peterson, Peltz & Kauffer Co., Distributors, South Bend, Indiana.

object of the next attack, delivered at noon. With the bombardment being maintained all along the front, the German batteries suddenly ceased their fire against this section of the front and through the smoke and over the shell-ploughed field the Germans drove with the full weight of their massed columns against the French works on the outskirts of the town. So stubborn was the resistance offered by the French that the Germans were again forced to abandon the attempt.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the law riders to the south of the village, the saddle at the other end of which is the Butte du Mesnil, was attacked. The assaults were hurled back here as they were in their last attempt of the day when they struck with apparently unwavering vigor at the hills to the northeast of the town, slightly east of a direct line between Tahure and the hill bearing its name.

Bavarians Win. There was another important engagement fought to the east of Neuvo St Vaast in Artois while the Champagne battle was going on. Here the Bavarian troops captured nearly 1,200 yards of French trenches, taking 200 prisoners, four machine guns and three mine throwers. The French quickly recovered, however, and counter-attacking, expelled the Germans from the trenches. Fighting for possession of the remainder of the works still is in progress.

BOMBARDMENT CONTINUES. LONDON, Nov. 1.—The bombardment of the Bulgarian Aegean sea coast was resumed on Thursday, according to an official statement of the Bulgarian war office Sunday.

The same statements reports a steady Bulgarian advance into Serbia and the continuation of the eastern pursuit of the fleeing Serbian army.

A Salonika dispatch states that the Bulgarians have not yet wholly captured Veles. Bulgarian losses at Veles are placed at 25,000 men. Communication between Veles and Krivolak has been interrupted.

The Anglo-French troops are firmly establishing themselves along the southern end of the Nish railway and crossing into Bulgaria, have occupied the hills surrounding Strumitza. The capture of the town is not officially confirmed.

Piot, the key to Nish, is in the hands of the Bulgarians, and the Austro-Germans advancing from the north, are endeavoring to form a ring around Kraguevatz, where the Serbian arsenal is situated.

Thus, besides endangering both the Serbian capital and the town where the Serbian munitions are manufactured, the central powers, with Bulgaria, are narrowing the gap through which the Serbian army in the northeast must escape.

To the hardy Montenegrins instead of the allies has fallen for the time being the task of saving Serbia's armies from annihilation and of preserving the line of their retreat from Nish and Kraguevatz.

For nearly a week despite the most determined Austrian assaults, the valiant troops of King Nicholas have held the line of the Drina, behind which lies the only remaining avenue of Serb retreat, the Cacak-Krusevac railway. Only in one place, south of Visegrad in a corner of the Bosnian border, says an official announcement from Cetinje, have the Teutons succeeded in crossing the river.

LINER BRINGS BACK BIG CARGO OF GOLD

New York Arrives With $3,200,000 Worth of Metal From Liverpool.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The American liner New York arrived Sunday from Liverpool with $3,200,000 worth of gold, contained in 128 boxes, in her specie room. As soon as the ship arrived six special detectives mounted guard over the precious metal, which will not be landed until tomorrow morning. The gold is consigned to American and Canadian banks.

Dr. W. J. Maloney, former professor of neurology in Fordham university, was carried ashore in a stretcher on arrival of the liner. He said he had been wounded by shrapnel while serving with the Red Cross in the Dardanelles operations. One bullet had shattered his right wrist, while another had struck the sciatic nerve in the right thigh. He said he expected to be able to walk within a few days.

WOULD-BE HAMLET FINALLY LANDS IN JAIL

Alexander Light Uses Up $500 of Taylor's Money But Fails to Pay Rent or Act.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Alexander Light, the undefeated Shakespearean actor, famous for the number of times he has almost played Hamlet, was arrested today. He spent the night in the Bridewell hospital, repairing his throat, lately damaged by a private rehearsal of "King Richard III." A tailor by the name of Clemens Wilkes brought about the downfall of the tragedian.

"He owes me $500 and he's no good," said the tailor. And a warrant charging Wilkes with larceny was sworn out. Wilkes says he was deluded into accepting a partnership with Light—a partnership in which Light was to supply nothing but dramatic genius, while the tailor was to furnish costumes and other expenses.

Light was to have given four performances of Hamlet last week in Central Music hall. The only trouble was that the rent was not paid. "It ain't my fault," declared Taylor Wilkes. "I advanced all the money. Light was to pay the rent and act. He didn't do it. That's all. And he's still got Hamlet's clothes and Ophelia's tights."
